

Charles Chien received the B.S.E.E. degree from the University of California, Berkeley, in 1989 and the M.S.E.E. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of California, Los Angeles, in 1991, and 1995, respectively. In 1988-1989, he was with Bell Communications Research, Red Bank, NJ, where he worked on a transmission system capable of carrying digital SONET-like HDTV on fiber at the rate of 622 Mbps. From 1989 to 1995, he was a Research Assistant at the Department of Electrical Engineering in UCLA, where he is currently Assistant Adjunct Professor. Since 1997 he has been with Rockwell Science Center as a Principal Scientist in Information Technology and Acting Manager of the Wireless Systems Department. His research interests are in wireless networking, digital wireless communications, digital signal processing, high-speed integrated circuit designs, and VLSI implementation of DSP and communication systems. Email: cchien@rsc.rockwell.com.