

CONTENTS

	page
List of Figures	iv
1. Background	1
1.1 Purpose of Federal Standard 1037C	1
1.2 About FED-STD-1037C	2
1.3 Search Engine Development	6
1.4 Benefits of the Search Engine	8
1.5 Web Version of FED-STD-1037C	9
1.6 The Web As The Future For Federal Documents	10
2. Designing The Search Engine	10
2.1 Development	11
2.2 Programming	14
2.3 Writing the Code	17
2.4 Testing the Program	18
3. The Program	18
3.1 The Core Functions	18
3.2 The Steps of the Core Functions	18
3.3 Displaying the Results	20
4. Conversion To CD ROM	21
4.1 The Format and Style	21
4.2 Supported Platforms	21
4.3 Programming	21
5. Summary	22
5.1 Benefits to NCS and to NS/EP	22
5.2 Benefits of Web Availability	22
5.3 Disadvantages of the Hypertext Web Version of the Standard	23
5.4 Benefits of the CD-ROM Version of the Standard	23
5.5 Benefits of the search engine	23
5.6 Advancing the Purpose of the Standard	24
6. References	24

APPENDIX: COMPUTER CODE FOR THE SEARCH ENGINE	25
---	----

List of Figures

	page
Figure 1. Full display of the term D region	4
Figure 2. Full display of an illustration after clicking the “Pict” icon.	5
Figure 3. The screen displaying the results of a search for the word telephone in the HTML online version of FS-1037C.	7
Figure 4. The definition of the term computer	11
Figure 5. The definition of the term, channel noise level	12
Figure 6. The definition of the term noise	13